

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY
University Museums

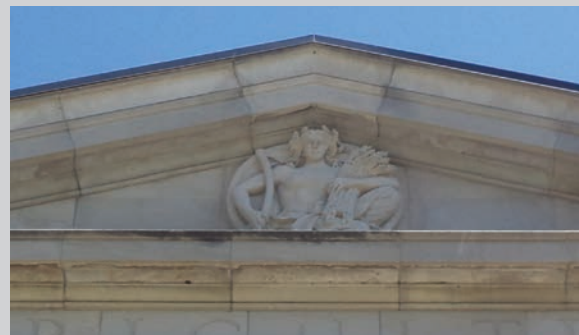

CLUE: In the lobby of a building that is always “green” you can find these artful story panels by Sticks, Inc.

QUESTION: What is the building’s name?

CLUE: This old house has lived many lives of central campus including the former home to Dean of Agriculture, Charles Curtiss.

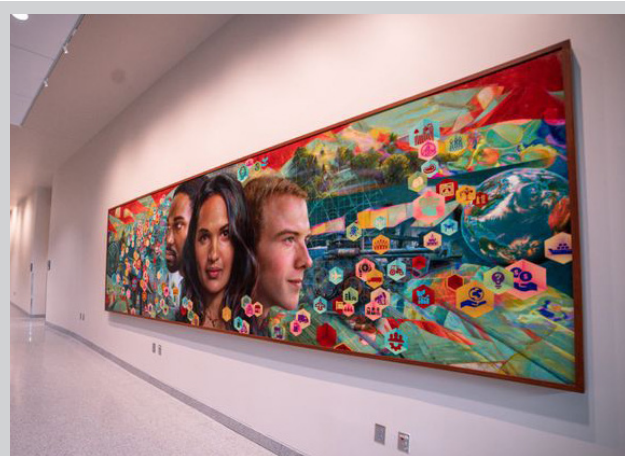

QUESTION: What is the date on the keystone over the front door to the home?

CLUE: A sheaf of wheat is in this guardian’s hand to offer a bountiful harvest to all who enter the doors of this central campus building.

QUESTION: Historic name of building carved below the lintel:

Current name of building:

CLUE: This is one of three newly installed mural panels, a grouping called Fields of Endeavors, in the 2019-2020 addition to this 2003 building.

QUESTION: This building, though not ivy covered, houses what college? _____

CLUE: This sculpture, holding a peanut, resides in a courtyard just north of a building with this alumnus’s name (however it isn’t named after him!).

QUESTION: Look at the label near the work of art... who is the artist for this sculpture?

CLUE: The series of stained-glass windows cast a golden glow into this important memorial on campus.

QUESTION: How many stained-glass windows are in the hall? _____

CLUE: One of the busiest buildings on campus, however there is no actual classrooms in this grand hall with ceilings of stained-glass.

QUESTION: What is the name of the building with these stained-glass ceilings? _____

CLUE: No, these are not the UNI Panthers, they are a pair of Panther sculptures by noted Iowa State artist Christian Petersen.

QUESTION: What is under the foot of the northern most panther? _____

CLUE: As you enter this renovated historic home to Engineering, look up to see "The Fifth Muse".

QUESTION: How many human head shapes dangle from this work of art? _____

CLUE: There is something missing from this image taken in the 2nd oldest building currently standing on campus, just a hop, skip and jump from the old campus train station.

QUESTION: Look at the label, what is the title of the work of art posing on the pedestal in front of this window?

CLUE: Coalesce, a brightly colored sculpture, is on the west exterior of this building whose original function was a train depot on campus.

QUESTION: Name this building.

BONUS: Name the train that this building originally serviced.

CLUE: Not reading but chopping wood (not Wood) is your only hint for these large murals.

QUESTION: Look at the label, what is the title and artist for this mural cycle?

Learn more about these works of art online at www.museums.iastate.edu

ANSWER KEY

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY

University Museums

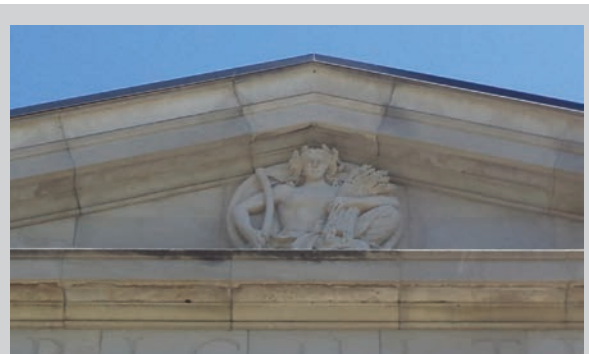

CLUE: In the lobby of a building that is always “green” you can find these artful story panels by Sticks, Inc.

QUESTION: What is the building’s name?
Horticulture Hall

CLUE: This old house has lived many lives of central campus including the former home to Dean of Agriculture, Charles Curtiss.

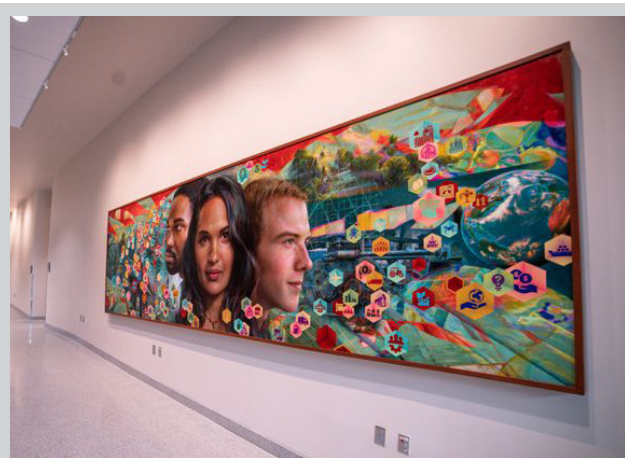

QUESTION: What is the date on the keystone over the front door to the home? 1860

CLUE: A sheaf of wheat is in this guardian’s hand to offer a bountiful harvest to all who enter the doors of this central campus building.

QUESTION: Historic name of building carved below the lintel: Agriculture Hall

Current name of building: Curtiss Hall

CLUE: This is one of three newly installed mural panels, a grouping called Fields of Endeavors, in the 2019-2020 addition to this 2003 building.

QUESTION: This building, though not ivy covered, houses what college? Gerdin College of Business (or Ivy College of Business)

CLUE: This sculpture, holding a peanut, resides in a courtyard just north of a building with this alumnus’s name (however it isn’t named after him!).

QUESTION: Look at the label near the work of art... who is the artist for this sculpture?
Christian Petersen

CLUE: The series of stained-glass windows cast a golden glow into this important memorial on campus.

QUESTION: How many stained-glass windows are in the hall? 12

CLUE: One of the busiest buildings on campus, however there is no actual classrooms in this grand hall with ceilings of stained-glass.

QUESTION: What is the name of the building with these stained-glass ceilings? Beardshear Hall

CLUE: No, these are not the UNI Panthers, they are a pair of Panther sculptures by noted Iowa State artist Christian Petersen.

QUESTION: What is under the foot of the northern most panther? Deer

CLUE: As you enter this renovated historic home to Engineering, look up to see "The Fifth Muse".

QUESTION: How many human head shapes dangle from this work of art? 1

CLUE: There is something missing from this image taken in the 2nd oldest building currently standing on campus, just a hop, skip and jump from the old campus train station.

QUESTION: Look at the label, what is the title of the work of art posing on the pedestal in front of this window?

Nocturne 5

CLUE: Coalesce, a brightly colored sculpture, is on the west exterior of this building whose original function was a train depot on campus.

QUESTION: Name this building. The Hub

BONUS: Name the train that this building originally serviced. The Dinky

CLUE: Not reading but chopping wood (not Wood) is your only hint for these large murals.

QUESTION: Look at the label, what is the title and artist for this mural cycle? Breaking the Prairie Sod by Grant Wood